2010-2011 Report to the Community

A growing family of healthcare services

Today, Southern Maine Medical Center (SMMC) has grown far beyond the original foundation of the hospital in Biddeford. As part of the MaineHealth network, SMMC has several large health care centers in many southern Maine communities where you'll find specialists and sub-specialists as well as family practice and internal medicine doctors using leading edge diagnostic technologies that ensure the very best care for patients. Two communities in particular – Saco and Kennebunk – feature some of SMMC's newest sites and have welcomed many new physicians to our growing family.

The SMMC Saco Health Center at 13 Industrial Park Road has been renovated and expanded to accommodate the growth of SMMC PrimeCare Family Practice and SMMC PrimeCare Pediatrics, as well as X-ray and Lab services. Our Physical and Occupational Therapy services moved to a spacious facility at 41 Spring Hill Road in Saco.

SMMC PrimeCare Pediatrics in Kennebunk recently expanded to its own building at 3 Shape Drive, adjacent to the SMMC Kennebunk Health Center at 4 Shape Drive.

SMMC is on the move and growing with southern Maine.

SMMC President & CEO Ed McGeachey and Saco Mayor Roland Michaud (right) cut the ribbon to open the newly renovated Saco Health Center in April 2011.

Message from the President

Excellence. Always.

I have worked in health care for nearly 35 years. In that time, I have seen extraordinary changes in how care is delivered, as well as in the technologies used to diagnose and treat disease. The skills of nurses, technicians, physicians, and all other health professionals – and the technologies they use so skillfully – have grown ever more sophisticated and impressive during my career. At the same time, hospitals have also changed remarkably. The term “hospital” is inadequate today to describe the evolution of services within communities that has created coordinated health care systems such as at SMMC. While SMMC’s hospital continues to serve as an essential component of community care, our physician offices, health centers, therapy offices and SMMC Visiting Nurses, together, provide services throughout our community, closer to where you live. It’s all part of making the patient experience as comfortable and convenient as possible.

Today, as part of the MaineHealth network, SMMC has several large health care centers in many southern Maine communities, from Kennebunk to Old Orchard Beach. There you’ll find primary care physicians – general internists, family practitioners and pediatricians – as well as specialists and sub-specialists who work as a team with an impressive array of diagnostic and other technological tools to ensure the very best care for our patients. And, the growing use of electronic medical records and network-wide diagnostic tools at SMMC places additional world-class expertise right at hand, whether your doctor is in Biddeford, Saco, Kennebunk, Old Orchard Beach, Portland, or Boston.

As the scope of SMMC’s services expands to a constantly increasing number of people in the communities we are privileged to serve, it is more important than ever to focus on ensuring excellence in all that we do. Our team of nurses, physicians, technicians, and other health care professionals work together to ensure continuity of care, the foundation of which is an unrelenting commitment to excellence. We want all of our patients and their families to answer the question, “Did your experience with SMMC exceed your expectations?”, with one simple word: “Always.”

In this year’s report to the community, you’ll meet several patients who share their personal stories as proof that SMMC’s commitment to quality is paying dividends. As our network of clinical care and personal caring continues to grow, we will always keep in mind that everything we do must focus on the experience of the individual patient. No matter what responsibilities we have on a daily basis, each and every one of us must ensure Excellence. Always.

“SMMC is very comfortable...the staff is courteous and thoughtful. SMMC has both the quality of care and that comforting sense of a community hospital.”

At 81 years young, Margery Orem of Kennebunk loves walking on the beach and snowshoeing, but when her knees became too arthritic and painful to even negotiate the stairs at her house, she knew it was time to do something about it.

“We have steep stairs at our home, and it was getting harder and more painful to climb the stairs,” she recalls. “I had been receiving cortisone injections at SMMC PrimeCare Orthopedics for more comfort, and they had gently encouraged me to consider joint replacement, but I had to make the decision to move forward. Finally, I decided to do something about it while I was still young enough to do it.”

According to Margery, she chose to have the surgery with John Solari, MD, an orthopedic surgeon with SMMC PrimeCare Orthopedics, after receiving a reference from a friend who had a hip replaced by Dr. Solari and was pleased with the results.

Margery had her left knee replaced at SMMC in February of 2008. She was impressed with the results. “Within a day I was up and walking,” she recalls. “I slept on a recliner at home the first night and was told by a visiting nurse on the second day to sleep upstairs in my usual bed. I was amazed that I was walking so easily with a cane the second day. The pain in my knee was completely gone.”

Based on the highly encouraging results from her first knee replacement, Margery chose to proceed with the second knee in the summer of 2009. The results were just as positive.

“I had had previous surgeries and am somewhat familiar with hospitals so I had no fear -- I knew that they could help me,” recalls Margery. “If someone is contemplating joint replacement surgery at SMMC, I would say don’t hesitate. My experience at SMMC was excellent!”

“We have lived in many places, and I’ve been in many hospitals in different cities and countries,” she adds, nodding toward her husband of 55 years, John, who served as an engineer in the Navy for 27 of those years. “SMMC is very comfortable and pleasant, and the food is good! You come away with a nice feeling. The staff is courteous and thoughtful. SMMC has both the quality of care and that comforting sense of a community hospital.”

Today, Margery is on the move again, pain free. She even enjoyed the winter snow with new snowshoes provided by her daughter. A friend, whose husband was a runner and suffered with bad knees, was so impressed with Margery’s mobility, she told Margery, “I wish my husband could go to the store and buy some knees like yours.”

“Dr. Kahn (Richard Kahn, MD, of SMMC PrimeCare Pulmonology) and the Sleep Lab staff were great. They took the time to listen to my concerns and made me feel very comfortable.”

Peter Agreste slept little. He was depressed. His weight ballooned to 268 pounds. Once a very active person, his world shrunk to sitting on the couch and occasionally mustering up the strength to get the mail. He was plagued by headaches and could barely breathe. And he was only 35 years old.

“It was a bad time,” recalls Peter, who lives with his family in Lyman. “Sleeping was difficult, I always felt tired, especially in the morning. I’d be in traffic and find myself nodding off at the wheel. Out of the blue one night I was having difficulty breathing -- I literally had to fight to breathe. I went to SMMC’s Emergency Department, and they admitted me to the hospital. After a bunch of tests, the doctors told me that they thought I had sleep apnea.”

Peter was reluctant to undergo the recommended sleep study. “To be honest, I never had a lot of faith in medicine,” he notes. “The Sleep Lab was my first experience in a hospital, and I was quite nervous. But Dr. Kahn (Richard Kahn, MD, of SMMC PrimeCare Pulmonology) and the Sleep Lab staff were great. They took the time to listen to my concerns and made me feel very comfortable.”

In February 2010, Peter was diagnosed with severe sleep apnea, including the physical manifestations of the disorder: high blood pressure, an enlarged heart, depression, and significant weight gain. Dr. Kahn and the Sleep Lab staff provided Peter with a CPAP device – a machine that uses continuous positive airway pressure (CPAP) to keep airways open during sleep. A CPAP machine uses a mask that fits over the mouth and/or nose that gently blows air into the throat just enough to stop the airway from becoming narrowed or blocked during sleep. The device enables individuals with sleep apnea to get a proper night’s rest.

The Sleep Lab staff also worked with Peter to encourage lifestyle changes to improve physical fitness and overcome the physical problems associated with the disorder.

Today, Peter is resting easy. He has lost over 80 pounds and returned to an active lifestyle, catching up on the many house projects neglected during his years of declining health. He’s built a new deck on the house, replaced kitchen cabinets, raked the backyard for almost six hours recently, and he takes plenty of time to play with his two and a half year-old son.

“The Sleep Lab staff saved my life,” states Peter. “I felt like I was dying. Now I feel like I’ve been reborn.”

SMMC Sleep Lab is located on the third floor of the Comfort Suites near the hospital campus. To learn more about SMMC’s Sleep Lab at Comfort Suites, call SMMC PrimeCare Pulmonology at 283-6408.

ANNUAL CHECKUP

“I’m so glad she found my cancer.”

Jessica Segal, Portland
Diagnosis: Thyroid cancer
Today: Cancer free

 Excellence.
Always.

“My first thought was ‘Wow! I didn’t think this could happen to me!’ When I hear the word ‘cancer’ I think of really sick people and the possibility you can die from it. I was in shock.”

Most teenagers don’t think about getting cancer, but when Dominique Carpentier, MD, of SMMC PrimeCare Family Practice in Saco, discovered a tiny lump on 16 year-old Jessica Segal’s thyroid gland during a routine physical, Jessica’s perspective changed.

“I was upstairs watching TV when my parents came up and told me,” recalls Jessica. “My first thought was ‘Wow! I didn’t think this could happen to me!’ When I hear the word ‘cancer’ I think of really sick people and the possibility you can die from it. I was in shock.”

Because the family lives in Portland, Dougald MacGillivray, MD, a Maine Medical Center surgeon with a special interest in surgical oncology, was scheduled to perform the operation.

“When Dr. MacGillivray had another ultrasound taken, they were surprised that Dr. Carpentier had found the tumor,” remembers Julie Segal, Jessica’s mother. “The tumor was so small they couldn’t even feel it.”

In September of 2008 the tumor was surgically removed followed by more blood work, a special diet for two weeks and then radiation treatment. Results of a full body scan showed that the surgery was successful.

Today, Jessica is a freshman at Wheaton College in Norton, Massachusetts, pursuing studies in film. Despite the distance, she has no intention of changing doctors.

“I’m grateful to all the doctors who took care of me and especially Dr. Carpentier,” recalls Jessica, who still sees her favorite physician for checkups every December. “I feel like I can talk to her about anything. I’m so glad she found my cancer.”

Michael and his family are grateful for the medical crisis that brought Michael to SMMC and the wonderful caregivers who are now his support team for life. His son sums it up, saying, “This episode gave my dad a second chance.”

Sometimes something really good comes from something really bad. In Michael Hupe’s case, the something really bad actually saved his life.

Michael, 54, knew he had diabetes, but without health insurance he was reluctant to seek care. He’d been trying to manage his diabetes on his own for three years, but was having trouble staying on top of his condition. Then one night, his life nearly came to a screeching halt. Michael’s family was having dinner when they noticed that his speech was suddenly broken and incoherent. They rushed Michael to SMMC’s Emergency Department.

When Michael arrived at SMMC he was having seizures, and his blood sugar level had reached 690 (the desired range is below 140). SMMC’s emergency team stabilized him and admitted Michael to the hospital where he was treated for five days. While hospitalized, Michael underwent a series of tests, and a CT scan showed another dangerous condition: a subdermal hematoma the size of a dime resting on Michael’s brain. As they discovered the hematoma threat, Michael’s medical team was also focused on his out-of-control diabetes.

During Michael’s hospital stay, his son Jason met with SMMC’s financial counselor and the Maine-Health MedAccess coordinator. “I had no idea all these programs were even available,” stated Jason. “My dad was able to get the life-saving insulin he needed and has a completely different outlook on his health. I don’t know what my dad would do without this program. The work you do and the lives you save are priceless.”

Prior to leaving the hospital, SMMC specialists educated Michael about how diet, exercise and medications affect his diabetes and offered him the ongoing support he needs to control the disease. He was connected with SMMC PrimeCare Family Physician Diane Nugent, DO, for ongoing primary care and diabetes education. The hematoma on Michael’s brain, which has since decreased in size, continues to be monitored by SMMC PrimeCare Neurologist John Dolan, DO.

“The nurses were all so nice and did such an excellent job,” says Michael. “I’ve learned so much. I’m still keeping a food diary, taking my insulin and walking an hour and a half every day.”

With the help of his primary care physician and diabetes educator, Michael monitors his diabetes and his health continues to improve. He’s even able to decrease his insulin checks to twice a day.

SMMC's participation in national initiative brings results

SMMC is among 16 hospitals nationwide chosen by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation to participate in an effort to enhance the quality of care in hospitals. The program is part of the Foundation's Aligning Forces for Quality initiative, which helps nurses and other frontline staff identify, test and implement changes that will improve the quality and safety of patient care in medical and surgical units.

This initiative is a cornerstone of the Foundation's $300 million commitment to improving quality in specific regions across the United States.

The nurse-led program to transform care at the bedside has been in effect one year and has already shown results, including:

- a decline in falls with injury;
- a decline in hospital-acquired pressure ulcers;
- implementation of changes that have resulted in more time spent with patients;
- new in-room safety features, including chair alarms.

The initiative has also built camaraderie and leadership among the nurses and frontline staff (who deal directly with patient care), while increasing staff engagement in the care process and decreasing staff turnover.

"Empowering the staff to make changes has resulted in amazing outcomes for our patients," says Pat Camire, RN, MSN, NEA-BC, chief nursing executive/vice president of Clinical Services.

"As we move into the second half of our journey, we will continue to focus on decreasing falls with injury and zero pressure ulcer rates," adds Lynn Cote, RN, nurse manager of SMMC's Medical/Surgical 3rd and 4th Floor. "Our goal is to increase patient and family involvement in their care."

Maine Patient-Centered Medical Home Pilot

SMMC PrimeCare Internal Medicine in Biddeford was one of 26 practices in Maine chosen to be part of an innovative three-year pilot program designed to centrally integrate and coordinate medical care to help people become as healthy as possible.

The Maine Patient-Centered Medical Home (PCMH) Pilot introduces the patient-centered medical home model to Maine. A "medical home" is not a building but a primary care physician and a team of health professionals who serve as a focal point for coordinating a patient's care.

According to Quality Counts!, a Maine-based organization focused on enhancing the quality of medical care in the State, there is considerable evidence to suggest that regions that have strong primary care-based services have better quality outcomes and lower costs than regions with less primary care.

"We want to ensure that the patient is at the center of all care," notes Mike Albaum, MD, a primary care physician and chief medical officer at SMMC. "The medical home model integrates and centralizes all aspects of care, to enhance the healthcare experience for patients and families. It can reduce costs by improving access to preventive services, providing care in an office setting rather than the ER, and through improved coordination of care."

According to Dr. Albaum, the complexity of today's healthcare system requires new ways to navigate health care processes. The patient-centered medical home model promotes quality, prevention, and effective primary care while actively engaging patients in their care.

Paul Laprise, MD, a primary care physician at SMMC PrimeCare Internal Medicine, uses large flat screen TVs and speech recognition software to update a patient's electronic medical record. "I didn't want to be looking at electronic pads while with a patient so I use the speech recognition software (which automatically writes into the record as he speaks) to show patients what I'm putting into their records. This engages patients more in their care, makes it a lot easier to focus on the patient plus it saves time updating records at the end of the day." Dr. Laprise also hands patients a printed copy of their record to take home. The use of advanced electronics makes it easier and more efficient to maintain and share medical records with other health professionals within the medical home model while ensuring patients better understand their medical records.

PETTS GEORGITIS FUND

Special fund helps complete expansion of surgical services

In July 2010, SMMC held a ceremony recognizing the completion of renovations to the surgical services area of the hospital, which were made possible through the generosity of a longtime benefactor.

On hand was a special guest of honor – James Georgitis, MD (at left), a beloved surgeon at SMMC who recently retired from a medical disability due to an accident. Dr. Georgitis was recognized by many of his colleagues for his longtime commitment to SMMC and the quality of its surgical services.

The project was financed through the Petts-Georgitis Fund, which was created in the 1980's by Alice Petts, who was dedicated to ensuring the high quality care at community hospitals. Mrs. Petts named Dr. Georgitis to direct the use of the funds. Since 1989 the Fund has purchased laparoscopic and anesthesia equipment. Recently over $600,000 was used to upgrade the endoscopy equipment.

The expanded department is designed to enhance patient comfort and privacy and boasts a new family waiting area, a greater number of bays for the Ambulatory Care Unit (ACU) and Community Ambulatory Patient Services (CAPS), a larger Post-ACU area, new endoscopy areas, and administrative and storage areas designed to maximize efficiency and convenience.

"The Petts-Georgitis Fund has made possible many of the equipment upgrades over the past 20 years," noted Ed McGeachey, SMMC's president & CEO, who helped unveil a memorial plaque outside the new department. "We are deeply grateful to Mrs. Petts and Dr. Georgitis for their support of quality surgical care at SMMC."

A healthy decision

Kathie Purdy of Saco takes great care of herself. She eats well, has regular checkups, and is passionate about her exercise classes at Saco Sport & Fitness. But a health issue last year made her question the need for another procedure she had avoided: a colonoscopy. It may have saved her life.

"On my annual visits to Dr. Rollerson (Mark Rollerson, MD, of SMMC PrimeCare Internal Medicine), he would gently remind me to consider a colonoscopy," notes Kathie. "I always said, 'Talk to me next year,' because getting a colonoscopy was something I wasn't too thrilled about, even though I'm in my fifties. I guess I was feeling somewhat cocky about my health. But an unrelated health issue I had last year motivated me to finally get the test."

SMMC Gastroenterologist Igor Prokopiw, MD, PhD, found and removed two pre-cancerous polyps.

"The nurses and doctors were wonderful," recalls Kathie. "I felt no pain. SMMC had the newest prep procedure and all went very well. My anxiety over the prep and procedure was overblown. I would not hesitate to have it done again. I love SMMC. If I had dallied and not had the procedure, I'm not sure what would have happened. I'm so pleased that my doctors kept encouraging me."

It's for Kathie Purdie, and many other members of our communities, that SMMC expanded its Post-Ambulatory Care Unit to continue to ensure that every patient experience represents our philosophy of Excellence. Always.

Kathie Purdy (left), with her daughter, Kelly Gunn, is glad she finally decided to get a colonoscopy. It may have saved her life.

 Excellence.
Always.

Annual Fund Donors MEMORIAL FUNDS

We are honored that these families thought of our patients when making their decision. We hope that their kindness provides comfort to others. # Volunteers

For heartwarming smiles and greetings of welcome you can count on the many wonderful volunteers at SMMC. They are deeply valued members of the SMMC family. From young students to retired professionals, SMMC volunteers happily donated more than 35,000 hours of time in 2010 to help make our patients and visitors feel more welcome and comfortable. We are deeply appreciative of these dedicated men and women. Thank you.
